Legislative programs and priorities discussed during April 12 Henderson Chamber event

The Henderson Chamber of Commerce concentrated on its legislative priorities and the chamber's government affairs program during its April 12 networking breakfast.

Presented by Amber Stidham, government affairs director, and Scott Muelrath, chamber president and CEO, the event provided an overview on why chambers of commerce are involved in protecting businesses at a legislative level; discussed how the Henderson Chamber is the voice of the local business community in government; and explained the issues affecting chamber members.

It also provided an overview of the Issues Mobilization Political Action Committee (IMPAC). A bipartisan group operating separately from the Henderson Chamber, the IMPAC is run by independent volunteer members of the Henderson Chamber and follows the mission of the Henderson Chamber and its member businesses.
